Greetings,

I am a Research Analyst with 7+ years of experience in mixed-methods program, policy, and public health research. Invested in creating socially just systems that advance public health.

Qualitative & quantitative research – Over 4 years of experience designing and/or coordinating qualitative research projects. Over two years of experience in quantitative data analysis and database management. Undergraduate training in qualitative and quantitative research methodology.

SNAP policy & anti-hunger advocacy – 3 years of experience in anti-hunger advocacy focused on intersecting issues like racial inequity, program access, pandemic relief, and child nutrition. Over 1 year of experience in policy analysis for federal programs including SNAP, Pandemic EBT, and Summer EBT.

Food and racial justice – 3 years of experience mobilizing mutual aid efforts between Black youth and Black farmers, and supporting land advocacy efforts for Black Farmers. Two years of experience researching, analyzing, and distributing racial equity information and resources to anti-hunger advocates.

Communications – 4 years of expertise in communicating complex ideas and information to varied audiences. Content includes literature reviews, social media content, infographics, technical assistance guides, training material, professional email correspondence, public health messaging campaigns, qualitative research reports, and webinars. Audiences varied from anti-hunger advocates, community members, organizational leaders, politicians, and grassroots organizers.

Overall, I enjoy collaborating with people who are passionate about serving their communities. Please refer to my resume for further information regarding my qualifications. Should you require any additional information, you can contact me at sofia.charlot@emory.edu.

Very truly yours,
Sofia Charlot
